Headline:
Dry and bright start. Patchy rain spreading from north later.

Today:
A fine, dry morning for the vast majority with good bright and sunny spells. Cloud and patchy rain feeding across the Moray Coast around mid-day, which pushes to the rest of the area by late afternoon. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Rather cloudy with light showers, but some brief clear spells also, these chiefly appearing to the north of the A96 and overnight. Northwest breezes. Minimum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Thursday:
Brighter spells mixed with a few isolated, light showers. Temperatures down from Wednesday, but best towards Upper Deeside. Northwest breezes. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Turning unsettled with occasional rainbands crossing erratically from south and southwest from later Friday, perhaps turning heavy at times.
